Airmen deploy to support OSW

Tech. Sgt. Brian Davidson

Aproximately 200 people boarded an L1011 aircraft to depart for the AEF deployment Tuesday.

More than five hundred airmen assigned to the 355th Wing deployed to locations in Southwest Asia and other areas in support of Operation Southern Watch, this week.

For this Aerospace-Expeditionary-Force deployment, D-M members will provide combat support personnel and A-10 aircraft at bases in Southwest Asia to support "No-Fly" zone enforcement taskings over Southern Iraq.

This particular deployment will include airmen serving in civil engineering, services, communications, medical, transportation, security forces and miscellaneous other combat support areas.

Those aligned to AEFs know in advance when they may be tasked to deploy for a three-month rotation, so they can enjoy better stability and predictability in their professional and personal lives.

Under the AEF structure, members should not be recalled to deploy for at least a year, a significant improvement that allows the service to better rest and train its force and improve overall Air Force readiness for future unknown global military operations.

D-M is the "lead wing" for AEF 5, meaning it is tasked to deploy a larger percentage of resources aligned to the AEF during its three-month "on-call" period (June through August 2001) in support of on-going global military commitments.

AEFs include dissimilar aircraft and people in all career fields, aligned to an operational schedule from throughout the active-duty and Reserve components of the Air Force.

D-M members are also deploying to Europe, Latin America and the Pacific to support on-going military operations there during this period as well.

AEF 5 and 6 will re-enter its "on-call" window again from September through November 2002, although D-M members are aligned to each of the Air Force's 10 AEFs (on call, in pairs) and will continue to deploy (in lesser numbers) to fill on-going military operations overseas, including Operations Southern and Northern Watch. (Courtesy 355th Wing Public Affairs)

Air Force policy doesn't 'mess around' when it comes to pornography

By Tech Sgt. B. Coors-Davidson
355th Wing Public Affairs

Downloading pornography to your government computer is in direct violation of Air Force Instructions and is punishable under the Uniform Code of Military Justice.

The 355th Communications Squadron monitors network traffic and reports violations to security Forces and the Office of Special Investigations.

Offenders will be punished to the greatest extent of the law.

This is the message that greets all Davis-Monthan people every time they log-on to their government computer, however, many people choose to disregard this warning and are still accessing pornographic Web sites.

"We have software that blocks many of the off-limits and adult sites and it is updated to block new sites every night," said Tech. Sgt. Dan Kunkel, 355th CS network security administrator.

In addition to blocking X-rated sites, the NCC monitors and logs all computer Internet activity for more than 8000 computers.

"The new software creates a listing of every Web site hit, and flags those that are questionable," Kunkel said. "It lists those hits by user name and also records the activity time, date and duration."

For this reason, it is critical for network users to log-out or lock their workstation so others aren't able to use their account for illegal web surfing.

When unauthorized activity is found, a list

UPAR responsibilities

UPARs are responsible for being the "eyes and ears" of the public affairs office. Each and every squadron on base has unique individuals in it that have an interesting story to tell, whether it is about sports, awards, lifesaving acts, IDEA program contributions, etc.

Each of your squadrons are also making improvements to the methods or process that they use or to squadron facilities or community areas via self help projects. UPARs are responsible for getting the information to the public affairs staff in a usable format and in a timely manner.

Not every idea is going to get picked up. The staff focuses on issues that effect the base populace in general, but it never hurts to present ideas to your squadron UPARs so that they can judge the input for newsworthiness or unique human interest appeal and forward it to the staff.

The following are some of the areas we hope to utilize UPARs to tell your squadron's story (based on skills):

- ◆ Provide news ideas as well as write and shoot photos of squadron activities for submission to the base newspaper
- ◆ Review and solicit Hometown News Release submissions
- ◆ Review their squadron's submissions to the base TV Channel (75)
- ◆ Seek volunteers for tours and speaking engagements

Commander's Salute

"This week I salute the 355th Wing XP, IG and squadron representatives for putting together a Phase 1 Exercise in the midst of a real-world AEF deployment. I realize this task was challenging but necessary to ensure troops are ready for the upcoming ORI. Each and everyone involved did their best to meet these challenges head on"

Supporting each other and working together to provide the best programs and services is a common goal we all share as members of Team D-M.

Ideas, suggestions, comments and kudos are an important ingredient for continuous improvement.

The fastest way to pass along comment or to get an answer to your concern is to contact the agency chief or functional manager listed here.

Still no solution? The Commander's Corner phone line is available 24 hours a day, at 228-4747, or you can send an e-mail to us at: 355thWing.CommandersCorner@dm.af.mil.

If you leave your name, phone number and a message, you'll receive a prompt reply, either in writing or by telephone. We will honor your confidentiality, but sometimes we need to contact callers to gather additional information. If your concern is of general interest to the base populace, the response may be published in the Desert Airman. Anonymous calls may not be published in the newspaper, we recommend you leave a contact phone number if you'd like us to provide an answer.

Dental clinic

Concern: I recently went to sick call at the dental clinic. My immediate problem was taken care of but I was informed that I would need to come back for a permanent fix. It has been more than a month since the sick call visit, and I'm told it may be one to two months more before I can get an appointment. There has to be a better way of scheduling appointments. Perhaps the dental clinic can keep a running book of appointments much like civilian offices. I would be a more content customer leaving the clinic with a scheduled appointment for two months out, rather than having to call 18 days after a visit to schedule an appointment.

Response: The dental clinic regrets that few appointments are available, at this time, for routine dental treatment. The dental clinic is scheduling appointments primarily for personnel who are deploying in AEF 5/6, have acute care needs, or are not world-wide deployment qualified. The dental squadron is working hard to maximize dental services. They have extended their duty hours from 7 a.m. to 5:30 p.m., and have obtained manning assistance from Air Combat Command for oral surgery and general dentistry. An additional 45 days of general dentistry has been obtained for their contract dentists to see more patients. In spite of all these measures, the demand for dental appointments is temporarily much greater than the availability of appointments. Routine dental appointments will remain tough to get for a while longer. Three dentists are scheduled to leave between now and July, with replacements due in August. Once manning stabilizes, the appointment process should improve. For more information call Senior Master Sgt. Tamera Thomas at 8-2643.

Library

Concern: I am working on my bachelor's degree and use the library every day at lunchtime. Now the library is closed several times a week. I filled out a customer comment form last week and it is still closed because of a shortage of funds. I was just curious about the closure and why the shortage of funds. Is this a long-term or short-term closure?

Response: Unfortunately, due to a shortfall in operating funds, we've had to cut back on the hours of the base library. This funding shortage is being felt across Air Combat Command, as well as by all of our services' facilities and programs. Given that reality, we've made a conscious decision to reduce some activities across the board, vice cutting some activities off completely. At the library, we studied our high-use days and times and took them into consideration when making the adjustment to the library's hours of operation. Rest assured, the Air Force's commitment to quality-of-life activities remains firm, as does our wing's commitment to continue to work this issue aggressively with ACC officials to increase hours in our activities to better meet the needs of "Team D-M."

Final Answer

What does the flag mean to you? (In honor of Flag Day)

Maj. David Bennett
Air Force Institution of Technology

"It reminds me of the sacrifices of those before me and gives me a sense of history and understanding of why I am in the military."

Melba Manalo

"I learned what the stars and stripes symbolized when I got my United States citizenship after leaving my home in the Philippines."

Chief Master Sgt. Steven Ehlers
355th Mission Support Squadron

"It's indescribable. I feel proud and humble at the same time."

Staff Sgt. Wendy James
355th Mission Support Squadron

"I feel regretful for those who lost their lives so that I can live in the most wonderful country in the world."

Airman 1st Class Michael Estrada
355th Security Forces Squadron

"I feel patriotic and proud to be an American."

Mordechi Rosenwirth
(Retired) Marine Corps

"I think our country has changed ... the pace is fast and there is no time for courtesy. We need to remember what the flag stands for and unite."

D-M members experience aerial refueling first hand

By Capt. John Henry
41st Electronic Combat Squadron

Davis-Monthan AFB recently hosted a tanker crew from the Kansas Air National Guard's 190th Air Refueling Wing. The KC-135 crew, commanded by Lt. Col. Thomas Pettigrew, flew training missions in the local area from May 22 to 24.

Piggybacking on this training opportunity, the Wing allowed folks from the 355th Operations Group staff, 355th Operations Support Squadron and the 41st Electronic Combat Squadron to ride aboard the tanker while it refueled our base-assigned A-10s and EC-130s.

More than 45 of D-M's warriors and spouses rode as passengers on the KC-135 as it tanked aircraft from all six flying squadrons in the Wing the three-day period.

For the 12 spouses and 31 support/maintenance troops, it was a rare and exciting opportunity to experience what many of our flyers consider routine, day-to-day operations. "I enjoyed it all and I feel that it was a once-in-a-lifetime experience to go and actually see what goes on up there and to see the planes get refueled in the air. When the A-10s were flying on our wing it was like what you see in a movie," said Airman 1st Class Michael Haney, an information management apprentice in the 41st ECS commander's support section.

"The coolest part of the ride was the whole hook-up thing; It was cool to see how close the planes get. The boom operator was really working his butt off to make the contact," said Jamie Henry, wife of Capt. John Henry, 41st ECS pilot. (Courtesy 41st ECS UPAR program)

Wildlife discoveries in the workplace

A pair of Great Horned Owls returned to the Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Center in hanger 2, and gave birth to three baby owls, sometime in March. These Great Horned Owls mate for life and return to the same place each year to lay their eggs and rear their young. They are still there but will soon leave to fend for themselves. Davis-Monthan AFB is a haven for undisturbed wildlife.

EC-130 squadron celebrates summer with friends, family

Airman 1st Class Christia Ouellet
Unit Public Affairs
Representative

In a never before seen event; more than 250 41st Electronic Combat Squadron members brought their families and pets to Jesse Owens Park May 25 during the wing down day to enjoy free food and festivities.

Activities included a jumping castle, dunk tank, Jell-O eating contest, piñata, sports, food, and of course, good friends.

The 41st ECS holds a Family Day picnic every year, but never before had one been held on a down day.

The mass attendance was so unexpected that within the first hour another trip to the commissary was in order, a sign that morale at the 41st is, as always, "on the up and up."

Even the scorching heat could not stop the "Scorpions" from playing several games of volleyball.

It was thought for one moment that preparation of the food would be a problem; Jesse Owens Park is not equipped with enough grills to feed 250 people quickly.

However, 41st ECS Maintenance came to the rescue by bringing their huge barbeque grill.

The First sergeant was quick to put on his black apron as others helped fire-up the grill, hamburgers, hotdogs and bratwurst standing by.

One of the highlights of the picnic was the relentless dunking of the squadron commander, Lt. Col. Chris Donovan, who was happy to get out of the heat and into the water, since the event raised money for the squadron's Christmas party.

Another huge success at the picnic was the jumping castle that entertained the little "Scorpions" for hours while the big "Scorpions" socialized.

A one-day pass was given to the winner of the Jell-O eating contest, Staff Sgt. Sarah Williams, who licked her plate clean in record time.

The Day at the Park was definitely a huge success and thanks go out to the new captains, Amanda Witt, Jon Shumate, Mark Hedden, and 1st Lt. Melanie Olson, who paid for the squadrons family day with their newly earned promotion pay.

Porn

of those people is provided to their commander and the OSI.

"Looking at pornography is a ridiculous way to ruin your career. Punishment is always up to the commander, but these cases are typically handled with an Article 15," said Capt. Chris Colclasure, 355th Wing judge advocate. "Commanders have a range of options with Article 15 punishments. For example, they can take away stripes, withhold pay, and restrict people to base."

Communications squadron people who are responsible for tracking unauthorized Web activity caution all computer users that there is no possible way to avoid having all computer activity recorded.

"We even had a case where someone repeatedly deleted their temporary Internet files and cache on the hard drive to try and cover their activities," Kunkel said. "Working with the OSI, we replaced his hard drive one evening and were able to retrieve the data, even after it had been overwritten."

Although most of the pornography cases involve males, cases show there is no typical offender profile when it comes to age or pay grade. Cases include airman basics through colonels and both married and single people.

When a person is identified as surfing illegal sites, that offender's computer use is monitored and copies of all of their Web hits are printed as additional evidence.

"Every questionable hit is checked to see if it is a pornographic site," said Tech. Sgt. Dana Harmel, Network Control Center NCO in charge. "Even if a person isn't accessing X-rated sites, unofficial traffic bogs down the system, slows computer speed, uses up our bandwidth and makes work slower for those doing official work."

There are occasional cases when a person accesses an off-limits site by accident. If this happens, officials advise people to close out of the site immediately and notify their work group manager or the NCC if their work group manager is not available.

"If internet use is not a part of your official duties, don't do it," Harmel warned. "If you are accessing adult or X-rated sites, you will be caught."

Despite repeated warnings, the NCC tracks more than a dozen cases of X-rated Web traffic every day. The consequences for these actions are swift and harsh, including reprimands, heavy forfeiture of pay, loss of promotion, confinement, court-martial and even a dishonorable discharge.

People are permitted to use the internet to enhance professional and military knowledge, however, when it comes to accessing pornography, the Air Force policy is simple—zero tolerance.

Promotion statistics

The Air Force selected 7,031 of 18,038 eligible technical sergeants for promotion to master sergeant and 12,051 of 36,095 eligible staff sergeants for promotion to technical sergeant. This represents an overall 38.98 percent selection rate for the 01E7 cycle and 33.39 percent selection rate for the 01E6 cycle. The master sergeant selection percentage stayed virtually tied with last year's percentage of 39.10, while this year's technical sergeant rate surged nearly six points beyond last year's already record showing of 27.64 percent.

The complete list of selectees becomes available on the Air Force Personnel Center's home page at <<http://www.afpc.randolph.af.mil/>

People who tested are expected to receive their score notices in mid-June, allowing them to see just how they stacked up against their counterparts. These score notices allow members to know how their Promotion Fitness Examination and Specialty Knowledge Test scores rank against those they're directly competing against for promotion within their Air Force Specialty Code.

The average selectee score for the master sergeant test cycle was 348.20 points based on the following:

- 134.20 Enlisted Performance Reports
- 71.72 Promotion Fitness Exam
- 65.63 Specialty Knowledge Test
- 27.91 Time in Grade
- 35.58 Time in Service
- 11.68 Decorations

The average selectee has 3.49 years time in grade and 16.71 years in service. Those selected will be promoted to master sergeant from August to July 2002.

The average selectee score for the technical sergeant test cycle was 331.99 points based on the following:

- 132.60 Enlisted Performance Reports
- 62.99 Promotion Fitness Exam
- 57.03 Specialty Knowledge Test
- 41.25 Time in Grade
- 29.45 Time in Service
- 7.29 Decorations

The average selectee has 5.83 years time in grade and 13.53 years in service. Those selected will also be promoted to technical sergeant from August to July 2002. (Courtesy Air Force Print News)

Team visits D-M to implement more secure methods of e-mailing

In the near future, sending electronic messages without digital signatures will only appear in the pages of DoD history.

Members of the Air Force Medium Grade Services Program Management Office and the Public Key Infrastructure System Program Office Implementation Team will visit here June 6 through 28.

They are here to implement methods of sending and receiving e-mail using digital signatures and encryption.

Medium Grade Services?

It is a secure, interoperable commercial off-the-shelf e-mail that uses DoD Public Key Infrastructure medium assurance certificates for signature and encryption.

Simply said, it allows e-mail users to send unclassified e-mail back and forth in a secure mode using 128-bit encryption, which turns readable text into unreadable cipher text.

Why use MGS?

In an effort to improve protection of DoD electronically transmitted information, Deputy Secretary of Defense John Hamre, directed use of this new procedure, in May 1999. MGS promotes the policy that all electronic mail sent within DoD will be digitally signed by October 2002. PKI is the framework that supports MGS applications and uses three Class 3 digital certificates. Class 3 certificates are issued for electronic applications that handle unclassified information in low to medium-risk environments.

Who will use MGS?

Active-duty military, selected Reserve members, Department of Defense civilians, and contractors who have access to DoD computer systems, will be issued Class 3 identification, e-mail signature, and e-mail encryption certificates. Your e-mail signature certificate will be used to digitally sign all e-mail by the above stated date of October 2002.

How do I get it?

While here, the PKI Implementation Team is planning to set up three registration stations (kiosks) each day for issuing certificates. According to PKI Implementation Team Lead Tracy Day, groups of eight people will be processed through each station in fifteen-minute increments.

A time, date and location will be set up for your organization through their orderly room.

The registration teams will issue every individual an e-mail certificate token. After this token is loaded on your personal computer, you can start using MGS right away.

In addition to supporting MGS, PKI will support other applications that are public key enabled, such as Automated Business Services Systems, Defense Travel System, Wide Area Workflow, etc.

As we move to a paperless environment, more and more applications will be public key enabled and make use of the infrastructure and certificates you will receive.

Davis-Monthan is the third Air Force base to implement the new system, following in the footsteps of Whiteman AFB, Mo., and Ellsworth AFB, S.D.

Issuing certificates at the other two bases was a breeze and the same ease is expected at Davis-Monthan, stated Day.

The Air Force Medium Grade Services office is located at Gunter Annex, Maxwell Air Force Base, Montgomery, Ala. The Air Force Public Key Infrastructure Systems Program Office is located in San Antonio, Texas.

For more information, visit the Air Force PKI Web site at <https://afpki.lackland.af.mil>, or visit the Defense Information Systems Agency at <http://falcon3.ecr.disa.mil>.

D-M comptrollers squash rumors about Social Security scare

Even though about 1,500 Air Force people have been overpaid due to under collection of Social Security withholding of FICA and Medicare Davis-Monthan AFB members can rest easy.

The D-M comptrollers attacked the issue and discovered that only a couple of the Team D-M members will be affected by this glitch and the financial impact is less than $100 for each of them. Those individuals have been notified.

This problem affects people who had adjustments to base pay, such as promotions, demotions, longevity increases, forfeitures and the Montgomery G.I. Bill.

The problem was created with last year's tax release to the Defense Joint Military Pay System and has recently been fixed, Defense Finance Accounting Service officials said.

Amounts of overpayments ranged from pennies to $1,700.

The overpayments, which affect all services, may not be waived and must be paid back. DFAS will reduce the end-of-month May pay of about 700 people who owe $120 or less.

The remaining, about 800 people, will have the shortfall prorated and deducted from their end-of-month pay for June, July and August. DFAS officials realize this may create a financial hardship for some people and will work those repayments on a case-by-case basis.

A small percentage of people had more money withheld than required. This money will be added back in their end-of-month May pay.

In addition to the problem with 2001 taxes, about 140 people had incorrect FICA taxes for 2000. Officials say these amounts were much smaller, but still must be corrected. These overpayments will be corrected once DFAS processes and corrects 2001 taxes. (Courtesy Air Force Print News)

Air Force wraps up first round of recruiter selections

Air Education and Training Command has identified 26 selectees for recruiter duty. These selections, along with previous volunteer selections, fill all but four of 86 requirements advertised March 12 to 23, according to command personnel officials.

Air Force Recruiting Service is currently screening candidates to fill the four remaining requirements.

The selection of the final four service-members for recruiter duty will end the initial round of a process that began in November when the Air Force announced it was ending its all-volunteer recruiter system and adopting a selection-based program.

The program is aimed at staff sergeants and staff-selects through master sergeants with less than 16 years of service.

People selected were chosen from a list of 120 names provided by Air Force Personnel Center officials that had been pre-screened for the recruiter selection pool, said Senior Master Sgt. Tommy Bell, AETC superintendent for special duty assignments.

"Candidates were notified and were required to submit applications to AETC," he said. "AFRS then screened applications to evaluate each member's suitability for recruiter duty."

AFPC officials will review assignments and should release them to the field by June 7, with reporting dates between Aug. 30 and Oct 30, Bell said.

"We anticipate continued selection throughout the coming assignment cycles as we continue to ramp up to our goal of 100 percent enlisted accession recruiter manning by December," he said.

To meet this goal, AETC is advertising new requirements on the AETC Web site at www.aetc.randolph.af.mil/dp/dpa/dpaar/. Interested volunteers may access the Web site to review requirements and submit applications.

AFPC also identified an additional 125 candidates who are currently preparing applications for review by AETC and AFRS, he said. November and December assignments should be completed by June 30. (Courtesy of AETC News Service)

Ryan: Top priorities start with family

By Martine Ramos

Nellis Air Force Base, Nev.

Families, a balanced civilian workforce and military construction funding are high-priority issues that senior Air Force leaders continue to address, said Air Force Chief of Staff Gen. Michael Ryan.

"We are a family Air Force," Ryan said during a visit here. "This is a recurring theme I encounter from airmen stationed around the world. Most of our folks when they finish their first tour have families."

Ryan said that the Air Force is an expeditionary force, in the business of deploying. But when members deploy, they want to know that their families are stable, safe and secure.

"We, as a family Air Force, must make sure they are taken care of, particularly those who live on the installations," Ryan said. "Approximately half of the military family housing needs rebuilding; we are working very hard to take care of that. There is a plan in place to make this happen by the end of the next decade."

"We are expanding facilities on base, such as child care, Ryan said. "When we focus on the families, we can be sure that airmen are focusing on the mission."

In the last few years Air Force people have received many much-needed pay and quality-of-life improvements, such as across-the-board pay increases, and just recently, the Family Subsistence Supplemental Allowance. Ryan expects this trend to continue.

"The service chiefs came together and worked very hard with the administration and Congress to try and turn around the trend of paying our folks less as we ask them

"We, as a family Air Force, must make sure (our families) are taken care of, particularly those who live on the installations.

— Gen. Michael Ryan
Air Force Chief of Staff

to do more," he said. "We think it is imperative that we compensate our folks sufficient to the task that we ask them to do."

Ryan acknowledged the great demand for Air Force people in the civilian workforce.

"They are excellent workers, they are disciplined; they are drug-free," Ryan said.

"They are family people who know how to lead and follow, and industry wants them. What we have to do is make sure we provide the quality of service and the quality of life to keep them here."

Most Air Force members love what they do, Ryan said.

They love the camaraderie and appreciate the challenge of the mission. "But their ultimate concern is for their families. Families always have 51 percent of the vote," he said. "That's why we have to continue to work on driving the equitability of pay with the civilian counterparts. People should not be penalized for serving their country."

Ryan is not only concerned with the men and women in uniform who make up the Air Force. Civil servants have been a vital part of the Air Force since its beginning. With more than 40 percent of the civilian work force eligible to retire in the next few years, the Air Force could face a shortage of experience and skills. Ryan does not believe this will have a great effect on the force.

"Even though a great number will be eligible, not all will choose to leave when they reach that point. Many will stay on with us," Ryan said. "We have asked Congress for help in trying to shape the force. That is, to bring in more younger people to balance our experience levels, and to be able to give incentives to our folks who want to retire."

"We have a wonderfully dedicated civilian workforce," Ryan said. "They are part of our team; they are Air Force. But we have to ensure that we are balanced so that it is a stable career for our civilians. That's why we are currently working on incentives for those who want to retire early, opening the way for a younger workforce."

Relief is in sight for military construction, he said.

"For the past four years we have underfunded MILCON and modernization to take care of families and readiness," Ryan said. "Budget caps have prevented us from increasing MILCON projects in any significant way, and we've had to defer modernization of our infrastructure so we could take care of families and quality of life. We hope very soon to be able to turn that around. We believe that will be a priority of this administration and Congress." (Courtesy of Air Combat Command News Service)

Spring into 101 Critical Days of Summer

(Editor's note: The 101 Critical Days of Summer began May 28, and continue until Labor Day.)

By Gen. Gregory Martin

U.S. Air Forces in Europe commander

"Spring into 101 Critical Days of Summer" is not just another safety campaign, but rather a time for us to think about and prepare for the summer, and schedule our activities accordingly.

By planning ahead of time, we can do a much better job of anticipating the many challenges we'll face as we try to balance personal, family and

Air Force priorities.

And, most importantly, we will be able to build in some flexibility, which will allow each of us to deal with the inevitable pop-up circumstances requiring changes to our original plan.

Although we face seasonal risks throughout the year, I have found the summer season to be the most dangerous.

With longer days and predominantly better weather, we have a tendency to overestimate the number of activities we can accomplish in any given day while underestimating the fatigue factor associated with those activities.

Additionally, the summer months produce rapidly changing and often violent weather patterns that can catch even the most prepared at an awkward and dangerous point.

The first step in all mishap prevention plans is to be aware of and expect change.

Next, match and assess the risks associated with a change.

Finally, we must adjust our attitudes and behaviors based on change and its associated risks.

I offer the following as a recipe for your personal mishap prevention plan:

- Expect change;
- Trust your intuition;

— Assess the risk before you act;

— Take care of each other;

— Your goal is to survive.

I cannot stress enough how important our people are in making our mission a success.

I do not subscribe to the view that mishaps are considered a normal part of our military business.

They can be prevented and eliminated!

We must all step out and demonstrate our sincere concern for everyone's safety and security to ensure a healthy environment during this time of year as we "Spring into 101 Critical Days of Summer."

It is 0-dark-thirty and you hear a noise in the baby's room. As you start to jump out of that warm cozy spot in bed, your mind races ... what is wrong? Is he hungry? Diaper need changed? You look at the clock it was only two short hours ago that you rocked your little one to sleep and tucked him safe and sound into his crib. You hear another muffled noise. As you jog down the hall you remember only a few short months ago in the delivery room when you first saw that little red face all squished up and funny looking. The pure joy and terror at the site of that baby ... my son you're finally here, you thought. What am I going to do now? Then memories of the first smile, the first time you picked him up and the crying stopped come back in a quiet flood. As you round the corner of his room you stop suddenly to see your wife rocking and humming to your child, content, his eyes almost shut. You heave a big sigh of relief and just for a minute you watch not saying anything. In that moment it is so apparent of how content your wife and son are. They are almost like one. You also remember how happy you were when you first found out you were going to be a dad. Then it all comes back all those fears, how nervous you were ... all those questions can I do this ... will I know what to do? Now looking on this peaceful site you realize it has been hard this first few months and it will at times probably get harder, but you know you wouldn't trade it for anything ... I am a dad!

Get ready new dads

Congratulations, you are going to be a father!

For women during pregnancy the primary focus is on her and the baby. Women have concerns about all the physical and emotional changes they are going through and making sure everything is perfect for that little life growing inside.

The one thing that can be overlooked is the father-to-be. Many times it is hard to compete with all the attention mom is getting.

If you are a dad to be or know one, here are some suggestions to help with common situations that have been voiced by some dad's who have been there.

Prenatal visits – go. The best way to be a part of this great adventure is to go to all the appointments and share those exciting moments, such as hearing the baby's heartbeat for the first time.

Health Lifestyles - Healthy habits such as a low fat diet with five fruits and vegetables a day, exercise for at least 30 minutes four to five times a week and at least eight hours of sleep every night can be the best support for the expecting parents. Any bad habits such as smoking or drinking? Now is the time to quit.

Connection - Woman have an advantage because she is carrying the new baby. Expectant dads can make that connection by talking, reading, and singing to the baby frequently during pregnancy. When the new baby arrives your voice will be a familiar one.

Getting ready - Be a part of the preparations. Make a pregnancy plan. Write down all the things you need to accomplish in preparation for the birth of your new baby — the nursery, baby clothes, making your house safe inside and out, a hospital pack for mom to take at delivery time. The list can grow as you start to plan so get a notebook and make a date each week to review your progress and add new items.

He Said - She Said — No one will know if you are feeling left out unless you communicate. This is an exciting time, so if you are feeling excluded from the pregnancy, speak up.

Getting along and communicating doesn't come naturally so if you need help with this extra stressful time contact a therapist or your health care provider:

Anxiety and Mood Swings — Highs and lows are very common due to hormonal fluctuations.

What if something goes wrong? Will we do everything right during the pregnancy, delivery and after? Knowledge is a powerful tool to overcome anxiety, so take classes, read books or research the Internet. Your medical provider or the obstetrician is a good contact to answer medical questions. Attend classes designed for "parents to be" and participate in birthing classes together.

Above all take a big breath and enjoy. After all, you're going to be a dad.

Big Brothers Big Sisters

Community service volunteers make a big difference

When Capts. Greg and Pam Tolmoff got involved in the Big Brothers Big Sisters program, they were a married couple who didn't have any family in Tucson and they wanted to spend time with a child to help out and to have fun.

Senior Airman Bryant Chan decided to join Big Brothers Big Sisters because he had a younger brother back home and he missed that relationship when he came to Tucson.

Tech. Sgt. Kevin Piihl is married with two daughters, and his reason for getting involved was he thought it would be nice to spend time hanging out with a boy.

Senior Airman Lisa Decker never had a sister when she grew up and she always thought it would be nice to be there for a child.

All of these people have two things in common.

First, they are all stationed at Davis-Monthan Air Force Base, and second, they all are currently making a difference in their community by being there for a child through the Big Brothers Big Sisters program.

Big Brothers Big Sisters is a One-to-One mentoring program.

An adult commits to spending time with a child (most of whom come from a single-parent home), for a few hours a week for one year. The time spent can be as simple as hanging out, going to the park, or having a good time at one of the local Tucson attractions.

Reports show that children from single parent homes are more likely to drop out of school, appear in juvenile court and get involved in drug usage, than are children growing up in two-parent homes.

The Big Brothers Big Sisters program offers a solution to these issues in an interactive and fun way. Just by doing activities with a child in the Big Brothers Big Sisters program, studies have shown a rapid decrease in alcohol and drug use, as well as an increase in school attendance and less aggressive behavior among kids.

Many volunteers from D-M find the program to be a perfect fit for their own lifestyles as well.

The program takes into account the TDY's that come up and the program offers military volunteers a chance to get to know the Tucson area, as well as helping to give volunteers a sense of satisfaction that they are giving back in their new community.

Anyone interested in the program can visit the Family Support Center on base and ask for Clayton Moore (8-6042), call Big Brothers Big Sisters directly (624-2447), or visit the Big Brothers Big Sisters Web-site at: www.TucsonBigs.org. (Editor's note: Sonoran Spotlight is a weekly feature of the Desert Airman that profiles a member (officer, enlisted or civilian) of the Davis-Monthan Air Force Base Desert Lightning community. Members are nominated by their unit commander or first sergeant.)

Name: Airman 1st Class Adrienne Jefferson

Organization: 43rd Electronic Combat Squadron

Duty title: Flight Management Technician

Hometown: Topeka, Kan.

Years of service: Two

Why did you join the Air Force: Because it offers abundant opportunities for those who are willing to do what's necessary to strive for their goals

Main responsibilities: Monitor the 43rd ECS Air Force Operations Resource Management System database for more than 140 aircrew members and eight crew positions. I provide the squadron training officers with AFORMS reports depicting the training qualifications of squadron aircrew members.

Best aspects of your job: The people I work with. I work in a great squadron with individuals who know that accomplishing the mission and "taking care of your people" aren't conflicting obligations.

Career goals: Get a degree in political science and receive a commission as a navigator or an electronic weapons officer

Hobbies/outside activities: Read and volunteer for for squadron functions and the Tucson community

What do you like best about D-M: The warm climate

Who inspires you; why: A major general I met in tech school; she was an extremely intelligent, assertive and outgoing person. What stood out most about her personality was her determination and tenacity. She was an inspiring example of someone who had an extraordinary goal and endeavored to achieve it.

Korean War Remembered

[Editor's note: As America recognizes its veterans (through the next two years) to commemorate the 50th anniversary of the Korean War, the Desert Airman is chronicling the significant events.] The following significant Air Force events occurred during this week in 1951:

June 10

The airfield at Chunchon, 50 miles northeast of Seoul and 10 miles south of the 38th parallel opened to cargo traffic, adding to 315th Air Division's ability to meet the demand for airdrop capability. Lt. Gen. Otto Weyland assumed command in Tokyo of Far East Air Forces, replacing Gen. Earle Partridge.

June 11

An SA-16 of the 3th Aerial Reconnaissance Squadron made a pickup at dusk of a downed F-51 pilot from the Taedong River near Kyomipo, North Korea. The SA-16, although receiving fire from both sides of the river, made a landing approach without lights, avoiding low electrical transmission lines and rocks and debris on the river's surface. The pilot earned the Distinguished Service Cross for the rescue.

Roche sworn in as 20th Secretary of the Air Force

Dr. James Roche was sworn in as the 20th secretary of the Air Force June 1 during a ceremony at the Pentagon.

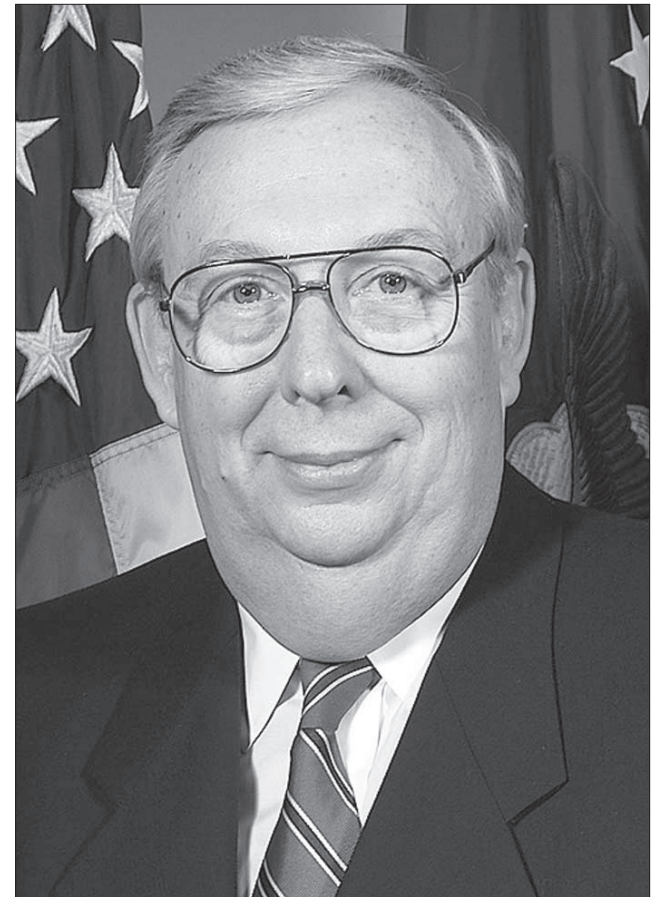

David Cooke, director of administration and management for the Office of the Secretary of Defense, administered the oath of office. Roche was nominated by the president May 7 and confirmed by the Senate May 24.

As secretary, Roche is responsible for the functioning and efficiency of the Air Force, the formulation of the service's policies and programs and the timely implementation of decisions and instructions of the president and the Secretary of Defense.

"I am honored to be confirmed as the secretary of the Air Force, and to join one of the most innovative, dedicated and respected teams the world has known — the United States Air Force," Roche said. "I appreciate the confidence and trust the president, the Secretary of Defense and the Senate have in me to lead this proud aerospace team. I consider it an esteemed privilege to have this opportunity to serve with the Air Force's outstanding men and women."

"Over the past decade, our nation has demanded increasingly more effort and sacrifice from the Air Force team — our active duty airmen, civil servants, Guardsmen, Reservists and contractors — and that team has responded brilliantly," Roche said. "The American people have the highest confidence in our military forces and are justifiably proud of the Air Force's numerous achievements and bright future."

"We must now respond to this century's new and emerging national security environment by fostering even more constructive relationships among the services to more fully integrate for joint and combined operations," he said.

Dr. James Roche, Secretary of the Air Force

Roche, a retired Navy captain, and was a recipient of the Arleigh Burke Fleet Trophy for the Navy's most improved combat unit in the Pacific in 1974.

"(I look) forward to piloting the journey ahead for the Air Force," he said. "My vision is an aerospace future, just as remarkable as its admired past. My pledge is that I will serve the way Air Force men and women do every day throughout the world, with integrity, selflessness and in earnest pursuit of excellence."

"We welcome Secretary Roche and his family to the Air Force team," said Gen. Michael Ryan, Air Force chief of staff.

Intramural links enthusiasts

In spite of nearly triple-digit temperatures, intramural golf enthusiasts have started their season at the Blanchard Golf Course. This year's format has changed from previous years -- teams now compete in a two-person scramble format, where they select the best shot, and hit from there each time. Points are awarded in the match-play format for winning the front nine, the back nine, and for overall score. (Left) Steve Hargrove, a golfer for the 355th Logistics Support Squadron team, lines up a putt on the No. 1 green. (Above) Tim Quick, LSS, gets ready to launch his drive from one of the Blanchard Course's tee boxes. (Right) Richard Goldman, LSS, sizes up a putt on the course.

Intramural coaches, umpires clinic

There's an intramural coaches and umpires softball clinic Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the Community Center. Anyone interested in being a coach or umpire is invited to attend. Call the Fitness Center at 8-3714 for more information.

Salt River tubing

Join outdoor recreation Saturday for a three-hour ride down the Salt River. Protective clothing, hats and sunscreen are encouraged, and bring a lunch and beverage. Transportation (7 a.m. to 6 p.m.) costs $15; a $10 tube rental fee is paid separately, at the river, using a driver's license as deposit. Monthly trips are planned throughout the summer. July 14 is the next trip. Outdoor rec is in Bldg. 4430, or phone 8-3736.

Farewell golf tournament

The 355th Wing Commander's Farewell Golf Tournament is June 15 at the Blanchard Golf Course. The format for the 7 a.m. shotgun start is a four-person scramble. Cost is $30 per person, and includes green fees, cart, mulligans, beverages during play, and a lunch at the finish. Prizes will be awarded for closest to the pin, longest drive and hole-in-one. Call Chris Berg at 8-9870 or Mike Mucklow at 8-9303 for more information.

Bowl for bucks

Air Combat Command's annual Bowling for Bucks promotion is in full swing. Bowling for Bucks, Pinbusters and Bookbusters give adults and kids a chance to win games, cash and prizes. Bowling for Bucks players get two free games for filling a 10-punch card, and they're eligible for monthly cash and prize drawings and a $500 grand prize drawing. Pinbusters gives youngsters a free game for completing a five-punch card, and they're eligible for monthly and grand prize drawings. Get cards at D-M Lanes. Not valid with league and special-event games. Bookbusters, for grades one through 12, encourages summer reading. Students get a free game for reading five books from the base library, and are eligible for monthly and grand prize drawings. Cards are issued and validated at the library. ACC's sponsor is MilitaryMoves.com (no federal endorsement intended). Call D-M Lanes at 8-3461, or the library, at 8-4381.

Softball tournament

The 13th annual "Contracting Weekend Bash" softball tournament is June 23 and 24 at the Golf Links/Craycroft Park. Prizes will be awarded for first through third places. Cost is $160 per team. Call Greg Manning at 8-5478, or Archie Perry at 8-2113 for more information. In addition, any unit interested in having a concession booth may contact Ken Winfield at 8-3942, or Shonda Stripling at 8-2212.

Registration available

Online registration is now available for runners interested in participating in the 5th Annual Air Force Marathon Sept. 22 at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. This year, marathon officials have added the capability for Ekiden relay teams and marathon teams to register together. To register, visit the marathon Web page and click on the "register information" button. Payment is by credit card only. A relay or marathon team captain will be required to provide the total team payment on one credit card, and will also need to provide the personal information (name, address, phone, age, weight and e-mail) for all team members. Entrants who provide a valid e-mail address will receive a confirmation e-mail within two weeks of registration. Confirmation cards will be sent through the U.S. Postal Service to those registrants who do not provide a valid e-mail address. The entry deadline is Sept. 5. Registrations received after Aug. 15 may not receive a confirmation. Call the U.S. Air Force Marathon office at (937) 257-4350 for more information.

“Service is a responsibility you don't take lightly.”

Service. A word we understand. We learn about it from our members, people like us who know what it means to serve in the military. USAA was founded more than 75 years ago by military personnel for military personnel. We serve our members with an array of products and services that stretches from insurance to banking to investments. We even have a unique package of services designed to ease you through a PCS or deployment. And our member service is consistently rated the highest by a wide range of sources – including our members themselves, whether they're enlisted or officers, on active duty or in the National Guard or Reserves. At USAA, service isn't just a word. It's a way of life. Just ask around.

Call us at 1-800-292-8561
or visit us at usaa.com

We know what it means to serve.™

INSURANCE • BANKING • INVESTMENTS • MEMBER SERVICES

USAA Federal Savings Bank, an equal housing lender and USAA Savings Bank, both FDIC insured, offer banking and credit card products respectively. Securities products offered through USAA Investment Management Company and life, health and annuity products by the USAA Life Insurance Companies. Property and casualty insurance, available only to persons eligible for group membership, provided by United Services Automobile Association, USAA Casualty Insurance Company, USAA General Indemnity Company, USAA County Mutual Insurance Company and USAA, Ltd.
